

New Child Friendly Cities (CFC) website

The UNICEF Innocenti Research Centre (IRC) in Florence, Italy focuses part of its activities on research to promote the implementation of the Convention on the Rights of the Child at the sub-national level. This work includes the development of a global knowledge base on Child Friendly Cities (CFC) – an approach that is demonstrating a potential for promoting the rights of the child at municipal level in both developing and industrialized countries.

A Child Friendly City is a local system of good governance
Committed to fulfilling children's rights

To make data and tools available to global and local partners interested in the approach, IRC has launched a fully renovated Child Friendly Cities website, with updated data and tools, a new graphic design and a powerful search engine.

Visit us at <http://www.childfriendlycities.org>

The web page contains systematized information on experiences in different countries, guidance and tools for those interested in building a child friendly city and a variety of resources for networking and building partnerships. From a guided menu, the user can access:

- the CFC Database with documentation relating to Child Friendly Cities worldwide
- the CFC Framework for Action outlining core "building blocks" for the development of a Child Friendly City
- CFC Good Practices from low- and high-income countries
- the List of Parameters derived from experiences world-wide
- the List of Child Friendly Cities around the world.

The website runs in English, French and Spanish. The new cross-search function provides a specialized and powerful search engine among data sets and tools contained in different sections of the website.
