Gender and the Evidence functions in social development

Why Is This Being Organized?
Without addressing gender, we may miss the potential of full social development. We may miss the potential of full social development in the following ways:
1. Not applying our evidence to target various factors, especially gender, in order to measure the impact of our evidence on learning activities, research, and evaluation.
2. Not applying our evidence to target various factors, especially gender, in order to measure the impact of our evidence on learning activities, research, and evaluation.

What is a Road Trip?
This learning event is a Road Trip. Road Trips put people and places at the center of learning. They give you the opportunity to travel both physically and metaphorically, tapping into evidence talents stored in evaluation, research, and studies. These talents are available in various combinations, enabling us to create evidence opportunities for gender issues. Much of the Rich Media learning can be done online, giving you the freedom to learn in your own time and space, like a road trip. The Road Trip format will include an opportunity for a greater exchange of knowledge and insight. It will create a workable team, where you will both be supervising and learning, and encourage you to look to the evidence talent, gender champion and an evidenceagle.
